Birkin,Graham Clarke,Martin Clarke,2017-03-27 The way in which products and services are delivered to consumers through branches and retail outlets or more generally through a network of distribution channels remains fundamentally important for maintaining a competitive advantage for a very wide range of businesses This is true within domestic markets but especially so for increasingly global corporations as shareholder pressure for continued growth drives businesses into ever more widespread geographical markets Arguing that more complex markets demand more sophisticated spatial analysis this book discusses the application of location planning techniques to generate competitive advantage in a variety of business sectors in a changing retail environment The series of techniques are analysed from relatively straightforward branch scorecards to sophisticated applications of geographical information systems GIS spatial modelling and mathematical optimisation Also explored are the changing dynamics of the impact of more restrictive planning environments in many countries on how retailers find new locations for growth and respond to changing consumer needs and wants The book is essential reading for students and scholars alike working in geography economics business management planning finance and industry studies Research in Education ,1974 Learning to Think Spatially National Research Council,Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Geographical Sciences Committee, Committee on Support for Thinking Spatially: The Incorporation of Geographic Information Science Across the K-12 Curriculum, 2005-01-03

Learning to Think Spatially examines how spatial thinking might be incorporated into existing standards based instruction across the school curriculum. Spatial thinking must be recognized as a fundamental part of K-12 education and as an integrator and a facilitator for problem solving across the curriculum. With advances in computing technologies and the increasing availability of geospatial data, spatial thinking will play a significant role in the information based economy of the twenty first century. Using appropriately designed support systems tailored to the K-12 context, spatial thinking can be taught formally to all students. A geographic information system (GIS) offers one example of a high technology support system that can enable students and teachers to practice and apply spatial thinking in many areas of the curriculum.

Immiserizing Growth Paul Shaffer, Ravi Kanbur, Richard Sandbrook, 2019-01-10. Immiserizing growth occurs when growth fails to benefit or harms those at the bottom. It is not a new concept appearing in some of the towering figures of the classical tradition of political economy including Malthus, Ricardo and Marx. It is also not empirically insignificant, occurring in between 10% and 35% of cases. In spite of this, it has not received its due attention in the academic literature dominated by the prevailing narrative that growth is good for the poor. Immiserizing Growth: When Growth Fails the Poor challenges this view to arrive at a better understanding of when, why and how growth fails the poor. Taking a diverse disciplinary perspective, Immiserizing Growth combines discussion of mechanisms of this troubling economic phenomenon with empirical data on trends in growth, poverty and related welfare indicators. It draws on political economy, applied social anthropology and development studies including contributions from experts in these fields. A number of methodological approaches are represented including statistical analysis of household survey and cross country data, detailed ethnographic work and case study analysis drawing on secondary data. Geographical coverage is wide including Bolivia, the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, India, Indonesia, Mexico, Nigeria, the People's Republic of China, Singapore and South Korea, in addition to cross country analysis. This volume is the first full length treatment of immiserizing growth and constitutes an important step in redirecting attention to this major challenge.

The Architect and Contract Reporter ,1898 Bordering Nira Yuval-Davis, Georgie Wemyss, Kathryn Cassidy, 2019-06-10

Controlling national borders has once again become a key concern of contemporary states and a highly contentious issue in social and political life But controlling borders is about much more than patrolling territorial boundaries at the edges of states it now comprises a multitude of practices that take place at different levels some at the edges of states and some in the local contexts of everyday life in workplaces in hospitals in schools which taken together construct reproduce and contest borders and the rights and obligations associated with belonging to a nation state This book is a systematic exploration of the practices and processes that now define state bordering and the role it plays in national and global governance Based on original research it goes well beyond traditional approaches to the study of migration and racism showing how these processes affect all members of society not just the marginalized others The uncertainties arising from these processes mean that more and more people find themselves living in grey zones excluded from any form of protection and often denied basic human rights
