Case Study 18 Tuberculosis

Difficulty: Beginning

Setting: Public Institution

Notes: World Health Organization (WHO), Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) guidelines, diagnostic test, risk factors, public health assessment

Scenario

You are a public health nurse working at a county immunization and tuberculosis (TB) clinic. B.A. is a 47-year-old woman who wishes to obtain a food handler's license and is required to show proof of a negative Mantoux (purified protein derivative) (PPD) test before being hired. She came to your clinic 2 days ago to obtain a PPD test for TB. She has returned to have you evaluate her reaction.

1. What is TB, and what microorganisms causes it?
 - TB is the common term for tuberculosis. Years ago, it was known as consumption (since older adults will use that term). TB is a communicable disease. It is a requirement that cases be reported to the CDC.
 - Tubercle bacilli are called Mycobacterium tuberculosis, or TB, tuberculosis the short.
2. What is the source of transmission for TB?
 - TB is an airborne bacterium.
3. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommends screening people at high risk for TB. List five populations at high risk for developing active disease.
 - Medically underserved populations.
 - Recent immigrants from countries with high prevalence of TB.
 - Persons who have had contacts or occupational contact with infectious TB cases.
 - Alcoholics and/or drug abusers.
 - Residents and staff of acute and long-term care facilities, prisons, detention facilities, homeless shelters, and residential facilities for HIV patients. Some employers may require proof that a person does not have TB before he or she is hired.
 - Individuals with chronic diseases who are immunosuppressed or have multiple comorbidities.
 - Medical personnel who work in the microbiology lab.
4. Describe the two methods for TB screening.
 - The preferred method is a TB skin test (Mantoux Test) done by injecting 0.1 mL of PPD (a tuberculin extract) intradermally in the middle region of the left arm using a 27-gauge needle on a tuberculin syringe. A wheal (a pale elevation of the skin) should be produced. The person then returns within 48-72 hours to be examined for a reaction on the arm. This method is required for screening employees and volunteers who are working in or are applying for work at clinics, and for persons born in TB-endemic countries.
