Empathic Space Christian Derix, Åsmund Izaki, 2014-10-27 In recent years questions of space have gained renewed momentum in architecture and urban design as adaptation densification and sustainable regeneration have become an increasing priority While most computing based design tends to emphasise the formal aspects of architecture overlooking space and its users the original computational design approaches first spearheaded in the UK in the 1960s and 1970s tended to be focused on behavioural and occupational patterns Over the last decade a new generation of design research has emerged that has started to implement and validate previous investigations into spatial computation aiming to understand how to design spatial configurations based on user experiences This revives an interest in the experiential that was first explored in the early 20th century by German and Nordic organic architects who invented design methods that correlated cognitive responses of buildings occupants to spatial structure The current revival of human centric design however represents the first design approach that synthesises spatial design and algorithmic techniques with organic design thinking which could also be regarded as a return to the first principles of architectural design Contributors include Paul Coates Christian Derix Olafur Eliasson Lucy Helme Bill Hillier Åsmund Izaki Prarthana Jagannath Dan Montello Juhani Pallasmaa Philip Steadman and Guy Theraulaz Featured Architects Designers Jussi Ngeslev Art Com Stan Allen Aedas R D Markus Braach Kaisersrot Hermann Hertzberger Kazuhiro Kojima Cat Pablo Miranda and Rafi Segal Multigenerational Family Living Edgar Liu, Hazel Easthope, 2016-11-03 Multigenerational living where more than one generation of related adults cohabit in the same dwelling is recognized as a common arrangement amongst many Asian Middle Eastern and Southern European cultures but this arrangement is becoming increasingly familiar in many Western societies Much Western research on multigenerational households has highlighted young adults delayed first home leaving the result of difficult economic prospects and the prolonged adolescence of generation Y This book shows that the causes and results of this phenomenon are more complex The book sheds fresh light on a range of structural and social drivers that have led multigenerational families to cohabit and the ways in which families negotiate the dynamic interactions amongst these drivers in their everyday lives It critically examines factors such as demographics the environment culture and family considerations of identity health care and well being revealing how such factors reflect and are reflected by a retracting welfare state and changing understandings of families in an increasingly mobile world Based on a series of qualitative and quantitative research projects conducted in Australia the book provides an interdisciplinary examination of intergenerational cohabitation that explores a variety of concerns and experiences It will appeal to scholars across the social sciences with interests in housing

Design for Aging Aia Task Force on Aging, 1987 Design for Aging Jeffrey W. Anderson, Zhong, David Hughes, Stephen Judd, Emi Kiyota, Monique Wijntjes, 2012-03-05 Architecture Interior Design. An in-depth look at the most innovative aged care facilities today. With the world's population aging at a rapid pace, there is a growing need for new ways to provide residential care for older people. Design for Aging explores some of the most successful examples of elderly housing today, focusing on integrating architectural considerations within an unwavering people-driven approach. Written by an international team of experts in aged care design, the book brings together twenty-six case studies from around the world, including Australia, Denmark, England, Japan, the Netherlands, Sweden, and the United States. The authors describe how each scheme has succeeded in addressing the needs of its residents, regardless of wide variations in design, geography, cultural factors, medical needs, capital cost, and other factors. Clear, well-documented information for each facility includes building descriptions and project data and how the overall design fits within a geographical location. The type of community, including number of residents, ethnicity, and specific conditions such as dementia. How to apply universal design principles in different political, social, and regulatory contexts. How to create a sense of belonging and well-being for residents while building strong connections with the community at large. What makes a facility able to attract and retain high-quality caregivers. Environmental sustainability issues, plus indoor and outdoor spaces. Architects and interior designers, as well as facility owners and caregivers, will find Design for Aging an inspiring and practical guide on how to navigate the many factors involved in creating good designs for aged care environments.
