An Evolutionary Theory Of Economic Change:

An Evolutionary Theory of Economic Change Richard R. Nelson, Sidney G. Winter, 1985-10-15 This book contains the most sustained and serious attack on mainstream neoclassical economics in more than forty years Nelson and Winter focus their critique on the basic question of how firms and industries change overtime They marshal significant objections to the fundamental neoclassical assumptions of profit maximization and market equilibrium which they find ineffective in the analysis of technological innovation and the dynamics of competition among firms To replace these assumptions they borrow from biology the concept of natural selection to construct a precise and detailed evolutionary theory of business behavior They grant that firms are motivated by profit and engage in search for ways of improving profits but they do not consider them to be profit maximizing Likewise they emphasize the tendency for the more profitable firms to drive the less profitable ones out of business but they do not focus their analysis on hypothetical states of industry equilibrium The results of their new paradigm and analytical framework are impressive Not only have they been able to develop more coherent and powerful models of competitive firm dynamics under conditions of growth and technological change but their approach is compatible with findings in psychology and other social sciences Finally their work has important implications for welfare economics and for government policy toward industry

An Evolutionary Theory of Economic Change Sidney G. Winter, Richard R. Nelson, 2012 This study develops an evolutionary theory of the capabilities and behavior of business firms operating in a market environment It includes both general discussion and the manipulation of specific simulation models consistent with that theory The analysis outlines the differences between an evolutionary theory of organizational and industrial change and a neoclassical microeconomic theory The antecedents to the former are studies by economists like Schumpeter 1934 and Alchian 1950 It is contrasted with the orthodox theory in the following aspects while the evolutionary theory views firms as motivated by profit their actions are not assumed to be profit maximizing as in orthodox theory the evolutionary theory stresses the tendency of most profitable firms to drive other firms out of business but in contrast to orthodox theory does not concentrate on the state of industry equilibrium and evolutionary theory is related to behavioral theory it views firms at any given time as having certain capabilities and decision rules as well as engaging in various search operations which determines their behavior while orthodox theory views firm behavior as relying on the use of the usual calculus maximization techniques The theory is then made operational by the use of simulation methods These models use Markov processes and analyze selection equilibrium responses to changing factor prices economic growth with endogenous technical change Schumpeterian competition and Schumpeterian tradeoff between static Pareto efficiency and innovation The study's discussion of search behavior complicates the evolutionary theory With search the decision making process in a firm relies as much on past experience as on innovative alternatives to past behavior This view combines Darwinian and Lamarckian views on evolution firms are seen as both passive with regard to their environment and actively seeking alternatives that affect their environment The simulation techniques used to model Schumpeterian competition reveal that there are usually winners and losers in industries and that the high productivity and profitability of winners confer advantages that make further success more likely while decline breeds further decline This process creates a tendency for concentration to develop even in an industry initially composed of many equal sized firms However the experiments conducted reveal that the growth of concentration is not inevitable for example it tends to be smaller when firms focus their searches on imitating rather than innovating At the same time industries with rapid technological change tend to grow more concentrated than those with slower progress The abstract model of Schumpeterian competition presented in the study also allows to see more clearly the public policy issues concerning the relationship between technical progress and market structure The analysis addresses the pervasive question of whether industry concentration with its associated monopoly profits and reduced social welfare is a necessary cost if societies are to obtain the benefits of technological innovation AT An Evolutionary Theory of Economic Change R. Nelson,1996 Overview and motivation Organization theoretic foundations of economic evolutionary theory Textbook economics revisited Growth theory Schumpeterian competition Economic welfare and policy Conclusion
