Anthropology And Migration Essays On Transnationalism Ethnicity And Identity:

Anthropology and Migration Caroline Brettell, 2003-09-08 Brettell's new book provides new insight into the processes of migration and transnationalism from an anthropological perspective. She analyzes macro and micro approaches to migration theory utilizing her extensive fieldwork in Portugal and many other countries. Key issues she discusses include immigrant incorporation vs assimilation models, the impacts on individual household and community as well as institutions and states, ethnic group composition, illegal immigration, city vs suburban enclaves, ethnic entrepreneurship, the role of religion, men and women as migrants, and the use of oral histories in understanding immigration and the mediation of new social boundaries. This book will be indispensable to instructors and researchers in anthropology, race and ethnic studies, immigration studies, urban studies, sociology, and international relations. Brettell, 2003-09-08 Brettell's new book provides new insight into the processes of migration and transnationalism from an anthropological perspective. It has been estimated at the turn of the millennium that 160 million people are living outside of their country of birth or citizenship. The author analyzes macro and micro approaches to migration theory utilizing her extensive fieldwork in Portugal as well as research in Germany, Brazil, France, the United States, and Canada. Key issues she discusses include the value of immigrant incorporation vs assimilation models, the impacts on individual household and community as well as institutions and states, the role of ethnicity and ethnic groups, the effects of clandestine or illegal immigration, the differing commitments to host vs sending communities, the shift from city enclaves to suburban areas, the constraints and opportunities that lead to ethnic entrepreneurship, the role of religion in transnational linkages, and the differing experiences of men and women as migrants. Brettell also explores the relevance of life histories and oral narratives in understanding the immigration process and the mediation of boundaries in a new society. This book provides a fresh perspective on the contemporary experience of migration and will be indispensable to instructors and researchers in anthropology, race and ethnic studies, immigration studies, urban studies, sociology, and international relations. Citizenship, Political Engagement, and Belonging Deborah Reed-Danahay, Caroline B. Brettell, 2008-07-16 Immigration is continuously and rapidly changing the face of Western countries. While newcomers are harbingers of change, host nations also participate in how new populations are incorporated into their social and political fabric. Bringing together a transcontinental group of anthropologists, this book provides an in-depth look at the current processes of immigration, political behavior, and citizenship in both the United States and Europe. Essays draw on issues of race, national identity, religion, and more while addressing questions including: How should citizenship be defined? In what ways do immigrants use the political process to achieve group aims? And how do adults and youth learn to become active participants in the public sphere? Among numerous case studies, examples include instances of racialized citizenship in Algeria, France, Ireland's new citizenship laws in response to asylum seeking mothers, the role of Evangelical Christianity in creating a space for the construction of an identity that transcends state borders and the Internet as one of the new public spheres for the expression of citizenship be it local national or global Migration Theory Caroline B. Brettell, James F. Hollifield, 2014-08-25 During the last decade the issue of migration has increased in global prominence and has caused controversy among host countries around the world To remedy the tendency of scholars to speak only to and from their own disciplinary perspective this book brings together in a single volume essays dealing with central concepts and key theoretical issues in the study of international migration across the social sciences Editors Caroline B Brettell and James F Hollifield have guided a thorough revision of this seminal text with valuable insights from such fields as anthropology demography economics geography history law political science and sociology Each essay focuses on key concepts questions and theoretical frameworks on the topic of international migration in a particular discipline but the volume as a whole teaches readers about similarities and differences across the boundaries between one academic field and the next How for example do political scientists wrestle with the question of citizenship as compared with sociologists and how different is this from the questions that anthropologists explore when they deal with ethnicity and identity Are economic theories about ethnic enclaves similar to those of sociologists What theories do historians the essentializers and demographers the modelers draw upon in their attempts to explain empirical phenomena in the study of immigration What are the units of analysis in each of the disciplines and do these shape different questions and diverse models and theories Scholars and students in migration studies will find this book a powerful theoretical guide and a text that brings them up to speed quickly on the important issues and the debates All of the social science disciplines will find that this book offers a one stop synthesis of contemporary thought on migration

Opportunity, Identity, and Resources in Ethnic Mobilization Ahmed Abdel-Hafez Fawaz, 2017-06-15 Recent unrest and political upheaval in Iraq and Georgia have brought attention to the place of minority populations in both countries Using Iraqi Kurds and the Abkhaz of Georgia as case studies this book addresses how ethnic identities become politicized across boundaries by states and political entrepreneurs leading to mobilization of ethnic populations This book bridges Middle Eastern studies with Post Soviet studies exploring the commonalities of cases in these regions to draw out patterns in cases of ethnic mobilization It also provides a theoretical framework to examine the process of ethnic mobilization Building on this theoretical framework the book provides a detailed empirical analysis of the case studies of the Kurds in Iraq and the Abkhaz in Georgia Analysis of both cases shows several common variables in cases of ethnic mobilization including ethnic entrepreneurs political opportunity structure ethnic identity politicization and resource mobilization These variables form the environment in which ethnic mobilization occurs motivated by such factors as state policy towards ethnic groups and external intervention to support ethnic groups

Superdiverse Diaspora Demelza Jones, 2019-10-31 Drawing on in depth qualitative research this book provides a nuanced picture of the everyday identifications experienced and expressed among the superdiverse Tamil migrant population in Britain It presents the first detailed analysis of the narrative and experiences of Tamils from a diversity of backgrounds including Sri Lankan Indian Singaporean and Malaysian and addresses the question of their identification with a Tamil diaspora in Britain Theoretically informed by Brubaker's conception of diaspora as process and Werbner's notion of diasporas as both aesthetic and moral communities Jones examines political engagements alongside other less studied frames of Tamil migrants' lives social relationships local and transnational the domestic space of home and performances of faith and ritual Considering diaspora as a process or practice allows the author to reveal a complex landscape upon which being Tamil and doing Tamil-ness in diaspora are diversely enacted Combining original ethnographic research with a theoretical engagement in the key debates in migration diaspora ethnicity and superdiversity studies this book makes a novel contribution to scholarship on Tamil populations and will advance critical understandings of the concept of diaspora more generally

Zapotecs on the Move Adriana Cruz-Manjarrez, 2013-05-06 Through interviews with three generations of Yal lag Zapotecs Yal Itecos in Los Angeles and Yal lag Oaxaca this book examines the impact of international migration on this community It traces five decades of migration to Los Angeles in order to delineate migration patterns community formation in Los Angeles and the emergence of transnational identities of the first and second generations of Yal lag Zapotecs in the United States exploring why these immigrants and their descendents now think of themselves as Mexican Mexican Indian immigrants Oaxaqueños and Latinos identities they did not claim in Mexico Based on multi-site fieldwork conducted over a five-year period Adriana Cruz Manjarrez analyzes how and why Yal lag Zapotec identity and culture have been reconfigured in the United States using such cultural practices as music dance and religious rituals as a lens to bring this dynamic process into focus By illustrating the sociocultural economic and political practices that link immigrants in Los Angeles to those left behind the book documents how transnational migration has reflected shaped and transformed these practices in both their place of origin and immigration

London's Polish Borders Michal P. Garapich, 2016-07-26 The figure of the Polish plumber or builder has long been a well established icon of the British national imagination uncovering the UK's collective unease with immigration from Central and Eastern Europe But despite the powerful impact the UK's second largest language group has had on their host country's culture and politics very little is known about its members This painstakingly researched book offers a broad perspective on Polish migrants in the UK taking into account discursive actions policies family connections transnational networks and political engagement of the diaspora Born out of a decade of ethnographic studies among various communities of Polish nationals living in London Michal P Garapich documents the changes affecting both Polish migrants and British society offering insight into the inner tensions and struggles within what is often assumed to be a uniform and homogeneous category From Polish financial sector workers to the Polish homeless population this groundbreaking book provides a street level account of cultural and social determinants of Polish migrants as they continually rework their relation to class and ethnicity

Transnational Ties John Eade, Michael Peter Smith, 2011-12-31 Cities are key sites of the transnational ties that increasingly connect people places and projects across the globe They provide opportunities and constraints within which transnational actors and networks operate and nodes linking wider social formations traverse national borders This book brings together a series of richly textured ethnographic studies that suggest new ways to situate and historicize transnationalism identify new pathways to transnational urbanism and map the contours of translocal interregional and diasporic connections not previously studied The transnational ties treated in this book truly span the globe giving concrete meaning to the phrase globalization from below How have the contributors to this book conceptualized the wider context informing the conduct of their ethnographically grounded multi sited research on the relationship between cities migration and transnationalism Several interrelated contextual dimensions have been singled out as affecting the opportunities and constraints experienced by transnational migrant subjects Socio spatially in several of these chapters the political economic context now called neoliberal globalization is shown to be a key driving force creating conditions that necessitate facilitate or impede migration foster trans local economic ties and create new inter regional interdependencies e g new South South and East East transnational ties The changing historical context of both migrating groups and the cities and regions they move across are central to the study of the interplay of urban change and migrant transnationalism The historical particularities of migrant recruitment migration histories migratory narratives and changing gender and class relations all affect the character and geography of transnational migration with an impact on the social structures of community formation This is a pioneering effort in the Comparative Urban and Community Research series
