OBJECTIVE — To examine the cross-cultural validity of the Problem Areas in Diabetes Scale (PAID) in Dutch and U.S. diabetic patients.

RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS — A total of 1,472 Dutch people with diabetes completed the PAID along with other self-report measures of affect. Statistics covered Cronbach's  $\alpha$ , exploratory factor analysis (EFA), and confirmatory factor analysis (CFA). Pearson's product-moment correlation, and t tests. Psychometric properties of PAID were compared for Dutch and U.S. diabetic patients.

RESULTS — Internal consistency of the Dutch PAID was high and stable across sex and type of diabetes. Test-retest reliability was high. Principal component analyses confirmed 1 general 20-item factor, whereas EFA identified 4 new subdimensions: negative emotions, treatment problems, food-related problems, and lack of social support. These dimensions were confirmed with CFA and were replicated in the U.S. sample. The PAID and its subscales demonstrated moderate to high associations in the expected direction with other measures of affect. Dutch and U.S. subjects reported having the same problem areas, with U.S. patients reporting higher emotional distress levels both in type 1 and type 2 diabetes.

CONCLUSIONS — The Dutch and U.S. 20-item PAID appeared to be psychometrically equivalent, which allowed for cross-cultural comparisons.

Diabetes is a demanding disease with a major effect on the quality of life of patients and their families (1,2). Research has suggested that psychological distress frequently occurs in people with diabetes and is often related to difficulties in coping with the daily regimen and worries about developing late complications (3,4). Psychological distress is not only burdensome itself, but also it can impede the self-care behaviors of the patients, thereby compromising glycemic control (5–7). To quantify levels of emotional distress in people with diabetes, various measures have been developed in the U.K., Germany, Canada, and U.S. (8–11). As Glasgow et al. (12) recently showed, research must establish the relative strengths and weaknesses of the various diabetes-specific instruments, particularly their sensitivity to detect changes and intervention effects (12). We further emphasize the importance of cross-cultural validation of such questionnaires. Psychosocial research in diabetes could benefit significantly from standardization of instruments to allow for international comparison of results (13).

The Problem Areas in Diabetes Scale (PAID) is a brief self-report measure of diabetes-related distress that has been found to be valid and clinically useful in U.S. type 1 and type 2 diabetic patients (14–16). PAID scores have been found to show positive associations with HbA<sub>1c</sub> and are a major predictor of poor adherence to treatment not involving general emotional distress. The PAID seems to be a good candidate for the measurement of diabetes-related distress across countries, but its cross-cultural validity has yet to be established. Ishii et al. (17) found evidence to support the clinical utility of a Japanese version of the PAID in a sample of predominantly type 2 diabetic patients. In this article, we report on the validation of the Dutch version of the PAID by comparing PAID scores across samples of Dutch and U.S. diabetic patients.

RESEARCH DESIGN AND METHODS

Subjects

As part of a large survey (18), 3,000 randomly selected patients of the 40,000 members of the Dutch Diabetes Association were mailed a booklet of self-report questionnaires, including the PAID. To determine test-retest reliability, a random sample of 250 patients from the total group was invited for a second assessment. 2 months later, PAID data from a U.S. sample of 256 type 1 and type 2 diabetic patients at the Joslin Diabetes Center (Boston, MA) (15) were reanalyzed and compared with the Dutch sample.

Measures

Self-reported demographic and clinical characteristics of the subjects included age, sex, marital status, monthly income, years of education, age at onset of diabetes, treatment regimen, number of complications, most recent HbA<sub>1c</sub> level, comorbidity, fre-

Psychodiabetologie Frank Petrak, Stephan Herpertz, 2013-09-18 Die Diagnose Diabetes mellitus hat weitreichende Konsequenzen für das Leben der Betroffenen. Depressive Störungen bei Diabetes mellitus Andreas Schmitt, 2015-06-01 Internationale Befunde weisen darauf hin dass depressive Symptome und Störungen bei Menschen mit Diabetes mellitus häufig vorkommen. Diese gesteigerte Depressionsprävalenz lässt sich vermutlich durch diabetesspezifische Belastungsfaktoren erklären welche sich auf die psychische Gesundheit von Menschen mit Diabetes negativ auswirken. Darüber hinaus werden depressive Störungen bei Diabetes als besonders ungünstige Komorbidität betrachtet da vermutlich negative psychologische und somatische Wechselwirkungen bestehen welche in einer schlechteren Prognose des Diabetes hinsichtlich diabetischer Folgekrankheiten sowie der Lebenserwartung resultieren. Da die aktuelle Befundlage allerdings berwiegend dem englischsprachigen Kulturrum entstammt und ihre Generalisierbarkeit auf Deutschland bislang nicht gesichert ist werden im Rahmen dieser Arbeit Prävalenzen diabetesspezifische Risikofaktoren sowie negative Auswirkungen depressiver Störungen bei deutschen Personen mit Diabetes anhand umfangreicher Stichproben aus der tertiären Patientenversorgung untersucht.
