One can enjoy/entertain its freedom up to that extent only until it doesn't violate others' freedom. A cartoonist expresses his attitude towards the various figures, characters and situations depicted in his figures and thus represents the interests of a society which are not always in harmony in the government. A cartoonist not only has to be creative but he also has to attempt to be educational. For the latter purpose, the cartoonist should conform to moral norms which might potentially be in contradiction with his style of expression. The authority struggles differently with cartoonists. In some countries, cartoonists are beaten, thrown in prison and even killed. In countries where authorities are unable to discreetly dispose of resenting cartoonists in such ways, other subtly coercive methods are applied.

European Human Rights Law Mark W. Janis, Richard S. Kay, Anthony Wilfred Bradley, 2008. The third edition of European Human Rights Law: Text and Materials has been substantially expanded to provide a complete review of the wide range of rights the Convention protects, with new chapters on the right to life, property, discrimination, religious freedom and education. The book introduces both the process and the substance of this increasingly important area of European law. A broad selection of extracts from essential cases and materials is accompanied by stimulating commentary that guides the reader through the legal rules and court system that have evolved in Strasbourg, how the court works and how European human rights law is enforced both at the national and international level. European human rights law is also placed into a useful comparative framework alongside human rights cases decided by courts in the United States, Canada and elsewhere. This third edition has been extensively updated to cover the major developments of recent years, including the reform of the European Court of Human Rights and the expansion of the system to central and eastern Europe.
